

Valuation of Debt Securities by MUFAP

as required under the Non Banking Finance Companies and Notified Entities Regulations, 2008.

Valuation Rationale

MUFAP is happy to announce the new prices as calculated by its "Pricing Committee" in consultation with the SECP. The calculation of prices with this new mechanism is the first step towards valuation of debt securities based on traded prices and use of traded prices to value similar non traded debt securities. This step would be followed by several initiatives for the development of the bond market. The very next step is to build a trading platform for these securities, which as per SECP agreement with MUFAP will be available in a reasonably short period of time.

The need for this new mechanism was felt due to the poor liquidity conditions in the financial markets and bilateral transactions taking place between parties without a proper trading platform where proper price discovery can take place amongst buyers and sellers. Thus it was of utmost importance to evolve prices which were true reflection of the market dynamics. These prices incorporate all the pertinent variables that are required for a true and reflective price of a fixed income instrument. These include duration, maturity, credit spreads, ratings, coupon rates and trading details.

Investors should note that the prices of debt securities can be volatile in changing interest rate and liquidity environment, and the prices can move in both directions. However, the interest rate volatility is mitigated for debt securities with floating rate coupons, which is true for most TFCs.

MUFAP is endeavoring to create the best possible environment for investing where there is proper price discovery, transparency and efficiency in trading of debt securities and is striving to address the concerns of all participants involved.

Rates of Debt Securities as of July 9, 2009
